Subject: Re: Freenix and web front
Posted by KRT1 on Tue, 08 May 2018 06:17:20 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I finally had some time to rework the wording and images a bit. Now we have a Freenix front end that looks like this:

http://freenix.3space.xyz/

This is the same as what is currently at:

https://freeslack.space/

which I do own/control. So, yes, we can continue to use that as an alternative domain, it doesn't expire until some time in 2020 I believe. I just figured we wanted to separate ourselves as much from the "freeslack" name.... "It's a conspiracy man, they're trying to take away all of our SLACK!"

I've made the site entirely static; only html, css, and images (i.e. no scripts at all) plus all of the local links are relative, which means you can just unpack this archive:

https://freenix.3space.xyz/stuff/site_files.tar.gz

into any web directory and it should work out of the box without any tweaking.

I admit, some of the images could use a reworking. I'm not a graphics guy, it's not my strong point. However, images can easily be replaced, not a problem if we come up with some nicer images to go with the text and links.

Feedback is welcome, I've just been strapped for spare time these past few months. Hopefully this summer will allow for play time.

What's next? Eventually, we'll spin up a new ISO I imagine, yes? Once that's done, I'll generate a new torrent and all of that good stuff.

thoughts?