

---

Subject: Re: Thoughts on Freenix64-15.0

Posted by slac-in-the-box on Tue, 18 Jun 2019 09:50:44 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Just download slackware64-current, remove the 27 known blobs (I like customizing the tagfiles for this), install gnu-libre-linux-kernel, and you got Freenix64-15!

I did this for headless minimal server config with less than 60 packages, and little to rebuild -- doing that for my desktop config would be too much work, and by the time I was done, actual slackware64-15 would be released and I would have to rebuild again...

---